PART 1: GRAMMAR EXPLANATION & STRUCTURAL RULES

Sentence Form

Sentence Type	Formula & Structure	Examples
Positive (+)	Subject + have/has + Past Participle (V ₃)	• I have visited London three times. • She has studied medicine for five years.
Negative (-)	Subject + have not / has not + Past Participle	• They have not finished their homework yet. • He hasn't eaten breakfast this morning.
Question (?)	Have/Has + Subject + Past Participle?	• Have you seen that movie? • Has she completed the assignment?

Key Usage Rules

- Experience (no time limit): I have been to Japan. — I have that experience, but I don't say when.
- Duration up to now: We have lived here for three years. — still living here now.
- Recent past with present result: I have lost my keys! — so I can't find them now.
- Unfinished time period: She has already read four books this month. — this month isn't over yet.

Time Expressions to Use

Ever, never, already, yet, just, recently, for, since, so far, up to now ✗ Don't use past time expressions (yesterday, last week, in 2020) with Present Perfect!

⚠ EXAM TRAP: Never mix "for" and "since" or use past simple time words with Present Perfect. Correct: I have lived here since 2018. | Incorrect: I have lived here since three years.

Spelling Tip: Regular vs. Irregular Past Participles

Type	Rule	Examples
------	------	----------

Regular (-ed)	Add -ed to most base verbs	work → worked, study → studied, play → played
Irregular	Must memorize	go → gone, eat → eaten, see → seen, write → written

Common Irregulars:	go →	gone
	eat →	eaten
	see →	seen
	write →	written

PART 3: READING PASSAGE & COMPREHENSION

READING PASSAGE: Digital Transformation in Education (150 words, B1 level)

Over the past decade, digital technologies have transformed how we learn and teach in schools around the world. Many universities already have adopted online learning platforms, and thousands of students have completed their degrees through distance programs.

Educators say these changes have made education more accessible. Students have gained the ability to learn anytime and anywhere. However, some teachers argue that face-to-face interaction has improved student motivation more effectively than any app or platform.

Experts predict that in the next five years, half of all courses will have incorporated artificial intelligence tools. While some schools have started this process already, others have faced challenges in training staff and upgrading infrastructure.

Word Bank: transform, adopt, complete, make, gain, improve, incorporate, start, face, challenge

Comprehension Questions:

1. What two things does the passage say educators believe have improved education? → _____
2. Which group of schools is described as having "already started" the digital transformation? → _____
3. What prediction is made about AI tools in five years? → _____
4. Do the authors think the transformation has been entirely positive? Give evidence. → _____
5. Rewrite using Present Perfect: "Schools adopted new technologies."

PART 4: ADVANCED CONTRASTS & EXAM PREPARATION

⚠ CAUTION: Present Perfect vs. Past Simple

High-Frequency Exam Contrast:

Present Perfect	Past Simple
Use: Past action with present result, experience, unfinished time	Use: Finished action at specific past time
Time: ever, never, already, yet, just, for, since, so far	Time: yesterday, last week, in 2020, ago, when, then
Signal words: already, just, yet, never, ever	Signal words: yesterday, last night, ago, in 1999
Example: I have visited London three times.	Example: I visited London last summer.

🚫 KEY PROFICIENCY TRAP: Stative vs. Dynamic Verbs

Some verbs describe states, not actions. These verbs rarely use continuous forms:
know, understand, belong, consist, contain, possess, realize, recognize, prefer, seem, appear

Correct: "I know the answer." (not "I am knowing the answer.")

But: "I am learning" is okay because "learn" can be active!
